<h1> Hola! I'm Chio 🖐️ </h1>

Hello World,

My name is Rocío Arenillas, and I am a Frontend Developer based in Madrid, focused on building modern, user-centered interfaces with React and TypeScript.

I completed a Master's degree in Frontend Development and UX/UI, where I worked with technologies including React, Next.js, Vue, TypeScript, JavaScript, HTML, CSS, Git, and Figma. Since then, I have continued developing personal frontend projects involving API integration, state management, authentication flows, responsive design, and Firebase services for authentication and database management.

My background combines both development and UX/UI design, allowing me to approach interfaces not only from a technical perspective, but also with strong attention to usability, clarity, and user experience.

Alongside my technical profile, I bring solid professional experience in customer-facing and team coordination environments. In previous roles, I collaborated directly with web developers on digital improvements, UX-focused updates, and marketing email customization using HTML and CSS. This experience strengthened my communication, problem-solving, and collaboration skills across both technical and non-technical teams.

I also hold a C1 level of English and gained international experience after living and working in the UK for two years, which allows me to work comfortably in multicultural and international environments.

I am currently looking for an opportunity as a Frontend Developer where I can continue growing professionally, contribute to meaningful products, and be part of a collaborative and product-focused team.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Kind regards,
Rocío Arenillas
